Directors & Officers Insurance – Mitigating your risk

Tuesday 28 July 2015

In our current environment, it takes not only leading-edge insurance, but also cutting-edge insights to mitigate D&O risks.

This seminar will provide an overview of the current legal environment and personal liability issues that face directors and officers of corporates, not-for-profits and other organisations, along with a summary of the insurance options that are available.

It will answer questions such as what is D&O insurance, what is the potential legal and regulatory exposure, key things to look for when placing D&O cover, how D&O works in practice when a claim is made, what is covered and what is not, and traps for the unwary.

Who should attend?

Senior Executives, General Counsel, Board Chairs and Members, Risk Managers, company shareholders and their representatives, and governance professionals across all sectors who are interested in ensuring their interests are well protected.

Presenters

Peter Goodall

Peter graduated in law from Auckland, and was admitted in 1994. He worked on the 1995-6 Equiticorp trial, in a team acting for the successful plaintiffs following the sale of New Zealand Steel. From 1997 he worked for 10 years in the London legal department of a very large insurance and reinsurance broker and pensions consultant, in the dispute resolution area. From 2008 he has worked for Marsh NZ, first as its company solicitor and then as its head of claims. From 2011 Peter has largely been involved with resolving Canterbury earthquake material damage and business interruption claims for Marsh's commercial and government clients, as its Head of Claims Advocacy.

Andrew Horne

Andrew Horne is a partner in Minter Ellison Rudd Watts' disputes resolution team in Auckland. He authors the Business Disputes section of LexisNexis' online publication, Practical Guidance - Business Law. With more than twenty years' experience advising and representing clients in commercial and regulatory issues and related insurance claims, he regularly represents well-known private and public listed companies and their directors in investigations and prosecutions by the FMA, NZX, MBIE and other regulators.
